

Dennis Sharma, Deputy Mission Director, USAID Bangladesh delivering the opening remarks at the inaugural session of the workshop on Approaches to Enhancing Nutrition Security with Safe Vegetables and Fruits in Bangladesh

Ronnie Coffman, Director - International Programs, CALS, Cornell University describing Cornell's engagements in Bangladesh Agriculture

Begum Matia Chowdhury, Hon'ble Minister, Ministry of Agriculture, Government of Bangladesh and Chief Guest at the workshop addressing the participants at the workshop

Dr. Shirazul Islam, Director (Research), BARI delivering the vote of thanks at the inaugural session

Dr. Abdul Jalil, Director HRC, BARI presenting an Overview of farm level food safety issues in Horticulture

Participants engaging in discussions after a technical session at the workshop

Monowar Hossain, MD - Hortex Foundation delivering his presentation on Deriving benefits by introducing GAP in Horticulture

Glenn Young, Associate Professor, UC Davis delivering a presentation on Identifying and mitigating toxicological and microbial contaminants

A participatory exercise to demonstrate to the participants the common levels of microbial contamination on their own hands and the importance of washing hands properly

Dr. Chitrita Deb Roy, Director – ERC, Penn State University delivering her presentation on Monitoring food-borne pathogens in fruits and vegetables in the US

Deon Mahoney, Sr. Technical Advisor, Food Safety Project, FAO delivering a presentation on Policy efforts in Bangladesh for food safety risk assessment and management

Participants and faculty participating in focused group discussions to develop action plan for the pilot project

A participant presenting the action plan developed through the focused group discussion

Dr. Md. Shirazul Islam, Director (Research), BARI along with KV Raman and K Vijayaraghavan from Cornell University addressing the BARI team to concretize the action plan for the pilot project

HortCRSP and BARI team on the last day of the August 2011 workshop